Forecast For Wales
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Friday 14 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Sunny spells and showers, these most frequent in the west.

Today:
A cloudy start, with cloud gradually lifting through the day to allow for afternoon sunny spells. Scattered showers remain likely throughout, especially for western areas, with these heavy at times and possibly thundery. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Tonight:
Showers clear northeast through evening, and cloud builds ahead of a band of more organised rain, heavy in places, that moves over the country from the southwest overnight. Breezy winds. Minimum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Saturday:
A day of sunny spells and widespread showers, these heavy at times and possibly thundery. Winds remaining breezy, and brisk along southern coasts. Maximum temperature 13 deg C (55 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Remaining unsettled throughout, with sunny spells and showers. Sunday seeing the heaviest and most organised showers, with a risk of thunder extending into Monday. Lighter, less frequent showers after Sunday.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.